THE DELIGHT OF LIVING IN YUMA.

It is a delight to just live these beautiful winter days in Yuma. The Almighty gave Southwestern Arizona and Yuma in particular, as delightful a winter climate as is to be found on the face of the globe. The crisp, cool air of the morning and evening makes the blood tingle in the veins, while the warm sunshine is always welcome, being nature's chief contribution to the perfect winter day. Living in Yuma may get commonplace to those who have been here for years and who have not for some time experienced the rigors of an eastern winter, but the late comer is profuse in his praise of the climate.

He who cannot ride out over the desert these beautiful winter days to the mountains and, reposing on the side of some carmine hill, gaze over a vast stretch of table land, broken by range after range of mountains, without appreciating the gifts which nature has bestowed on a land, deprived as it is of water and the attending bounties, has little imagination and soul.

Yuma, a jewel in the heart of the land of sunshine, has most of the paraphernalia and conveniences of a modern city. It is surely a good place in which to live and more people are appreciating that fact every day, as the growing population of the city demonstrates.

Yuma must exploit its winter climate more during the coming year and must provide better housing for the winter visitors that are to come.

Our climate is as yet poorly capitalized.

THE HUNT INJUNCTION MEETS FAILURE.

When, at the start of the Hunt injunction hearing at Phoenix yesterday, the supreme court intimated just how it felt in regard to the injunction, there was a decided lowering of temperature among the faithful few Democrats who appeared. Although the court did not give out its decision in writing or say anything which was holding, it as much as said that the arguments would be heard on the afternoon of the 28th, and then a decision against the injunction would be given.

Justice Cunningham pointed out that if the Hunt injunction was granted it would be possible in the future for a candidate, no matter how badly he was beaten to ask an injunction against the secretary of state issuing a certificate of election, and that if the majority against him was 30 or 3000, the ends of justice would be defeated.

Following the close of the hearing, Secretary of State Osborn took the floor in the hall outside the court room, and proceeded to state that he would under no consideration issue a certificate of election, that he had declared the results of the election to the governor which was all that was necessary. Mr. Osborn was somewhat warm under the collar, and failed to note the approach of Mr. Bullard, who took exception to his words and informed him that he had not issued or made any sort of a declaration concerning the result. Osborn thereupon declared that it was Mr. Bullard's ignorance and failure to read the daily papers which kept him from knowing that a declaration had been made. Bullard sized up Osborn in his usual sarcastic manner, and informed him just exactly where to get off. With his last sarcastic shot he turned, left Osborn standing alone, and walked off in spite of injunctions on the part of Osborn to come back and talk it out.

MOHAVE COUNTY'S DILEMMA.

Mohave county is up against a peculiar condition in reference to who will exercise the duties of sheriff, during the next two years. Sheriff Lane was defeated at the primary for the nomination. At the general election the candidates received an equal number of votes. This precludes the supervisors from declaring the result of the election or of the clerk from issuing a certificate to either candidate.

Under decisions of various courts, a contest cannot be instituted until there has been a declaration of the result, and in the case of a tie vote neither party can institute a contest. It is a fact, alleged to be well known, that there was at least one illegal vote cast at the election. By getting rid of that particular vote one of the candidates could be declared elected, and the contest instituted if desired, or a recount had.

Right here the law steps in and blocks the proceedings, by providing that there can be no change in the result from that announced by the boards of election, and no ballot can be discarded, even though it is known to be fraudulent, except through a contest. So the tie vote is enclosed in a legal web within a circle with no point of exit.

Under these conditions it looks favorable for the incumbent to hold over for another two years, although the voters by a very decided vote indicated that he is persona non grata as a sheriff.

Of Interest to Married Women.
Most married women look after the health of their families and almost every woman can do so to advantage. Mrs. William Flaherty, Skaneateles, N. Y., writes, "My husband used two bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets last winter when he was suffering from indigestion and biliousness. These tablets relieved him right away and by continuing them for a few weeks his digestion was strengthened and general health was improved."—Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

KIRKPATRICK COMPANY, 346 Second Street, Yuma Arizona.
Gentlemen:—As I wrote you sometime ago, I will be in Yuma until Christmas, and during that time will make my Headquarters at your store. I am bringing a large amount of toys and holiday goods with me, the best I ever had, but would advise informing your customers to purchase early, as the quantity of a great many articles is limited, not being able to secure any from Europe owing to the war.
Am glad to come to Yuma this year and enjoy your glorious sunshine. With kind regards to all our friends,
Sincerely Yours,
SANTA CLAUS.

MOST SATISFACTORY CHRISTMAS GIFT.
